Peak of Tornado Season Arrives

Tornado outbreaks are probably the weather event most often associated with spring.

Tornado activity in the Lower 48 begins to increase in March before peaking in April, May and June. Those are the core months for tornadoes, but they can occur at other times during the year.

March averages the fewest tornadoes in spring, with 77 per year. That average increases to 187 in April and 275 in May, based on the period from 1997 to 2016.

The area where there is a higher risk for tornadoes in spring shifts from the Deep South in March toward the Plains and Midwest from April into May.

During this time WOODSIDE SENIOR LIVING will be conducting Tornado Drills to ensure everyone knows what to do in case of a tornado.
